First in-depth documentary on WikiLeaks and the people behind it.

Reporters Jesper Huor and Bosse Lindquist travel to key countries where WikiLeaks operates, interviewing top members such as Julian Assange and his new spokesperson Kristinn Hrafnsson as well as people like Daniel Domscheit-Berg.

WikiLeaks founder Julian Assange has sent out 100000 encrypted copies of secret diplomatic cables as an insurance policy against being silenced. Assange and others discuss the challenge of taking on the global digital media censorship empire.

A truly free press — one unfettered by concerns of nationalism — is apparently a terrifying problem for elected governments and tyrannies alike. —Evan Hansen

“The Pentagon and military intelligence — along with the FBI and the CIA — have targeted for several decades Americans opposed to illegal and immoral wars. In order to stop WikiLeaks, [they suggest] that the persons responsible for the leaks be hunted down and prosecuted.” ~Kirt Nimmo, Infowars.com

“Three things cannot hide for long: the Moon, the Sun and the Truth.” ~Siddhartha
