["One of the best 9/11 truth movies ever made" ~Prof Kevin Barrett]

1971

[80 min]

S On March 8, 1971 eight ordinary citizens broke into an FBI office in Media, PA, took hundreds of secret files, and shared them with the public. Thus uncovering the FBI's vast and illegal regime of spying and intimidation of Americans exercising their First Amendment rights.

N Despite searching for the people behind the heist in one of the largest investigations ever conducted, the FBI never solved the mystery of the break-in, and the identities of the members of the Citizens' Commission to Investigate the FBI remained a secret. Until now. For the first time, the members of the Citizens' Commission have decided to come forward and speak out about their actions. 1971 is their story.

S Told through a combination of exclusive interviews, rare primary documents from the break-in and investigation, national news coverage of the burglary and dramatic re-creations, the story of the Citizens' Commission unfolds with haunting echoes to today's questions of privacy in the era of government surveillance.

"The question we try to put before you is simply this: Who went too far, and what does 'too far' mean... when the killing has started, when you want to stop it?" ~Father Michael Doyle, of the Camden 28

"Civil disobedience is not our problem. Our problem is civil obedience. Our problem is that people all over the world have obeyed the dictates of leaders...and millions have been killed because of this obedience...Our problem is that people are obedient all over the world in the face of poverty and starvation and stupidity, and war, and cruelty. Our problem is that people are obedient while the jails are full of petty thieves... (and) the grand thieves are running the country. That's our problem." ~Howard Zinn

"What do you do when a child's on fire? We saw children on fire ... in a war that was a mistake? What do you do? Like, write a letter?" ~Father Michael Doyle, of the Camden 28
